Girl, 14, raped in alleyway attack

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

A 14-YEAR-OLD girl was reportedly dragged down an alleyway and raped by a man who asked her for a light for a cigarette.

The girl was walking alone along Greenfields Way in Haverhill towards Headlands Avenue at around 5.50pm on a weekday evening when a man approached, asked her for a light and started chatting.

He then assaulted her and pulled her into an alleyway where he raped her.

The teenager was so traumatised by her ordeal that she only reported what had happened to police on Sunday.

She has been speaking to specially-trained police officers, who are now appealing for information following the attack, which took place three weeks ago.

The girl described her attacker as a white male, around 6ft 3in tall, bald with stubble and bloodshot eyes and a Union Jack tattoo on one of his upper arms. He was wearing black tracksuit bottoms and a beige vest.

Work is being carried out to establish exactly where the incident occurred and house-to-house inquiries are set to begin.

Love is in the air for diamond pair

ROMANCE blossomed among the aircraft hangars for a couple who met while working at Marshall's in Cambridge more than 60 years ago.

Ken and Derene Kitchener today celebrate their diamond wedding anniversary and still share a love of aviation.

Ken, 82, retired from his job inspecting airliners and executive jets in 1993, having worked at Marshall's for almost 50 years. Derene, 86, was called up and involved in war work, then returned to work at Marshall's, where she met Ken.

Ken recalls: "It was not exactly love at first sight, we did not marry until 1950. It took us a while to get together.

"I went into the army at 18 and Marshall's held my job. All my life I have loved aircraft, they have always been my number one, after my wife.

"We have had a very good life together, we are both still quite active. I have had both my hips done and my wife has a problem with her sight, so I try to keep up with the gardening and cleaning."

Ken was born in Cambridge, but the couple have lived at Chestnut Close in Haverhill for the past 60 years.

They plan to celebrate with their son Chris at a family meal at the weekend.

Hotel sold at auction

A TOWN centre hotel has been sold at auction for £402,000 with a sitting tenant.

The Rose and Crown Hotel in Withersfield Road, Haverhill, was sold at public auction by Savills on the instructions of the administrator of Elizabeth Estates, which folded earlier this year. The 10-bedroom hotel is currently let to Narnia Leisure Ltd until 2044.

A spokesman for the auctioneers said they could not divulge who the buyer was, but that their details would be available at the Land Registry once the sale was completed. No-one at the Rose and Crown was available to comment.

Thief takes power tools

POWER tools were stolen from an insecure garage on Monday night.

The burglary happened at Watting Road, Haverhill, at around 10pm and a suspicious dark-coloured Vauxhall Vectra was seen in the area at the time. Calls in relation to this incident should be made to Pc Dan Steel at Haverhill police on (01284) 774100.

Students experience diversity

LIMBO dancing and Bollywood moves were on the timetable for pupils who met a variety of different people during a Diversity Day.

The event was held at Castle Manor Business and Enterprise College in Haverhill, with pupils meeting a range of people from different backgrounds.

These included African drummers and dance workshops in limbo, hip hop, break-dance and Bollywood.

In addition to this, Castle Manor held its first inter-faith conference, where representatives from a Buddhist, Christian, Hindu, Muslim and Humanist background all came to participate.

Organiser Saddique Shazeen said: "As a school, we want our pupils to broaden their minds and experiences to prepare them for the real world. This day was organised so that pupils experienced a taste of other people's culture and had a fantastic opportunity to explore their beliefs and values."

Sign up for the Big Toddle

SOME small feet will be marching their way round a town park next month as youngsters step forward to take part in a Big Toddle event which is being organised in association with the Haverhill Weekly News.

The Big Toddle event is getting bigger and better all the time, with almost 30 families already involved and several local companies offering their support.

Louise Cohen, senior media consultant at the Weekly News and mother of two-year-old twins Amy and Harry, has organised the toddle, which is part of a national fund-raising campaign by Dr Barnardo's to help fund its work with disadvantaged children.

The toddle will take place at the East Town Park in Coupals Road, Haverhill, on Sunday, August 8, at 10.30am.

Following the toddle around the park, Kirsty Cummins, of Roly Boo's Yoga, will take a free session for all those wishing to participate and then families can stay for a picnic.

Goody bags have been organised for every child who does the walk, containing a free carton of drink donated by Tesco, something from the Mini Leaves range from Figleaves.com, fridge magnets from STP Stationery, Billy Blood Drop stick-on character from the Blood Donors Association and Weekly News pens and giveaways. Each child will also receive a medal, sticker and certificate as a reward for completing the toddle.

The event is for pre-school children aged up to five years, and younger ones can be pushed in a buggy if they are not up to walking yet. Anyone who wants to register to take part should e-mail advertising@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk by August 1.

Science park 'needs houses'

DEVELOPERS hoping to build a science park which could create up to 1,000 jobs have produced an independent report which says the plan is not viable unless an element of housing is allowed.

Carisbrooke Investments, the developer of the Haverhill Business Park, has submitted a planning application for the prestige development at the 30-acre gateway site entering Haverhill from the Cambridge direction.

The independent report has shown the research park would not be viable without allowing some form of higher-value usage, potentially residential, to be developed alongside it.

The report, produced by PACEC - Public and Corporate Economic Consultants - follows a previous study commissioned by the Suffolk Development Agency in 2006.

The research park has been

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

allocated in St Edmundsbury Borough Council's draft concept statement to be developed for light industrial, research and office use, units for new and small firms involved in high technology and low density development with extensive landscaping.

However, the independent report makes clear that this would not be viable for the developer, Carisbrooke Investments, and recommends that the surplus residual land at the site - estimated to be in the region of nine acres - should be used for residential development.

Nic Rumsey, director at Carisbrooke Investments, said: "We are pleased with the findings of this study as it reaffirms what we have said all along.

"The Haverhill Research Park is an important development for Haverhill and would bring with it many benefits, but in its current form it is simply not a viable development.

"While we are pleased with the results, we hope the council will now take this on board when it produces its full concept statement later on this year."

The report recognises that "the park would be a highly attractive and relatively low density development, forming a 'gateway' to Haverhill", but acknowledges that "demand for premises has, if anything, weakened since the 2006 survey."

Working on an assumption that the total infrastructure cost would be £4million, the report concludes that the scheme would "still be showing a loss after 10 years", based on an average take-up of 15,000 sq ft per annum.

The draft concept statement is currently out for consultation and all comments must be received by St Edmundsbury Borough Council by July 30.

Fraud couple spared prison

A COUPLE who swindled the husband's father out of thousands of pounds have escaped a jail sentence.

John and Carol Apps, who prosecutors said had "bled dry" pensioner John James Apps, were both given suspended prison sentences at Ipswich Crown Court on Monday.

The Haverhill couple had denied defrauding Mr Apps senior, 80, of more than £14,000 over a six-month period, but were found guilty by a jury after a trial in June.

John Apps, 41, was sentenced to eight months imprisonment, suspended for 18 months, made the subject of a 12-month supervision order and ordered to do 100 hours of unpaid work.

His wife Carol, 36, was given a four-month prison sentence suspended for 12 months, with a 12-month supervision order.

No financial orders were made, but there will be a proceeds of crime hearing at a later date to decide whether any of their assets should be confiscated.

The couple, of Bellings Road, gained control of the father's bank accounts, but claimed the elderly man had given his consent for the cash withdrawals made. Both pleaded not guilty to three offences of fraud by abuse of their position between November 2007 and June 2008.

Mr Apps senior, a former Port of London worker, left four statements before his death in which he denied that he had given his son and daughter-in-law permission to take the money. The trial jury heard that he had lost his home in south Essex after he re-mortgaged to help his only son and daughter-in-law with their financial problems.

Walk on: ladies from the Wednesday for Women group will embark on a 10k part moonwalk tomorrow night.

Moonlight stroll for friendly women

A GROUP of women will be stepping out for a moonlight stroll this weekend in a bid to boost their funds.

Members of the Wednesdays for Women group will take part in a 10k moonwalk around Haverhill tomorrow night, starting and finishing at Haverhill Arts Centre. Joanne Akehurst, a member of the group, said Haverhill Town Council had sponsored their effort by paying for T-shirts and they all planned to wear "something sparkly" for the event. Around 12 members of the group will be running the 10k circuit around the town, with the remaining 15 walking the distance.

The Wednesdays for Women group meets each Wednesday morning from 9.30am to 11.30am at the Leiston Social Centre on the Clements estate and provides friendship and organises activities for women.

New members are always welcome. If anyone wants to sponsor the moonwalk, they can make donations at the weekly sessions or at the On Track office in Strassbourg Square, Haverhill.

Drugs arrests after tip off call to police

FOUR people have been arrested for drug offences after a raid on a house was prompted by information from the public.

A search warrant was executed at an address in Boxford Court, Haverhill, and four people were arrested.

One was arrested on a charge of possessing a class A drug with intent to supply and the other three with possession of cannabis, a Class B drug, with intent to supply.

All four were released on bail until September.

Haverhill police recently appealed to the public to let them know about drug dealing activities they suspected were going on in their communities.

Pc Will Wright, of Haverhill police, said it was hard to tell if the information had been received as a direct result of the appeal, but they were grateful for it and urged others to do the same.

He said: "I think it is down to the fact that people are not willing to accept that sort of behaviour in their neighbourhoods."

"Any information is gratefully received and treated in confidence."

Girl, 14, raped in alley

Detective Inspector Andy Footer said: "The female is extremely traumatised by this incident and has been very brave in coming forward to report this."

"As the attack occurred some weeks ago it is imperative that we speak to anyone who was in the area at the time as soon as possible, and I urge anyone who has any information which could assist with this inquiry to contact West Suffolk CID without delay."

Anyone with any information in relation to this incident should call West Suffolk CID on (01473) 613500 or Crime-stoppers on 0800 555 111.

School setback after discovery

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

WORK on a new Haverhill primary school has been brought to a halt after "significant" archaeological finds were unearthed there.

The discovery of a prehistoric settlement at the Chalkstone Way construction site will delay the opening of the new school, being built to replace Westfield Primary School, by at least a term and also add to the cost of the project.

The original cost of the school was around £7 million.

Work on the adjacent Samuel Ward Arts and Technology College, which is being expanded as part of the Suffolk Schools Reorganisation scheme, will not be affected.

A Suffolk County Council spokesman said: "The most significant archaeological discoveries are prehistoric settlements and associated burials."

"An Iron Age house has also been excavated and a number of cremation burials have been discovered. The excavation is still ongoing."

"The council is legally required to have this work carried out before construction can begin. This will inevitably mean work on the project will finish later than originally planned.

"To ensure young people's education is not disrupted they will remain in the existing school buildings for one term longer."

"The work will add additional cost to the project but an exact figure is not yet known."

"It is expected that young people will have moved into the new building by the summer term 2012."

All middle schools in Haverhill are due to close by September 2011 and the new primary schools currently being built on the Clements and Chalkstone estates are due to open in 2012.

Primary school pupils this week visited the new school site to see the discoveries for themselves, as the finds were used as a learning experience.

The council spokesman said: "The children are very interested in what has been found as it brings history to life."

Beattie to join jet set at the age of 80

AT an age when most people are putting their feet up, Beattie Loveday is about to take her first ever trip on an aeroplane to visit the remote island off South Africa where she was born.

The 80-year-old widow will be jetting off from Heathrow next week for the 12-hour flight to Cape Town, then travelling by ship for six days to reach St Helena in the Atlantic ocean.

Beattie last visited the island in the 1980s by sea. The tiny island has less than 4,000 inhabitants, is only 12 miles long and six miles across, and has no airport.

Beattie, who left the island when she was 17, will be travelling there with two nephews and three great-nieces, who want her to show them round. She said: "One of my nephews had his 50th birthday in March and his daughter said she was not going to get him a present, but pay for him to go to St Helena. My nephew asked me to go along to show him round."

"I left there after the war as there was nothing there for girls to do. A lot went to South Africa or England to work in private service. I came over to work for Lady Astor's son. I met Princess Margaret and waited on her. I worked there for two years and because I am a British subject I could move about.

"St Helena has been a British colony for 400 years and when I went back in 1984 there was a big celebration and Prince Andrew visited. A lot of people are moving away from the island because they don't get a big wage, only £70 a week. It has a lovely warm climate, the coldest time is August, Christmas time is really hot. I miss my island very much and I am really looking forward to seeing it again. I am a bit shaky about flying for the first time at my age, a bit nervous about the 12-hour flight, but it will be worth it."

Beattie, of The Street, Little Thurlow, was married to Don Loveday for almost 55 years until his death in 2008. She says she is very well looked after by her two sons, daughters-in-law and two grandchildren.

Noisy cars are being stopped

NEARLY 70 motorists have been given fixed penalty tickets for having exhaust systems which are too noisy.

Police in Suffolk are clamping down on noisy vehicles after buying three new testing devices worth £1,200 each.

It follows a successful trial of the device in the West Suffolk area. Now all three roads policing units in the county have been issued with a meter.

The clamp-down follows complaints from the public about noisy exhausts.

Since mid May, when officers completed training with the new equipment, 96 tests have been carried out with 68 drivers being issued with a £30 fixed penalty fine.

Temporary Sgt Paul Stock, based at Bury St Edmunds, introduced the new noise meter.

He said: "During the trial we gave advice to drivers whose exhausts were too loud, but now all RPU officers based in Bury, Halesworth and at police headquarters have been trained to use the meter we have moved on to enforcement."

"Over two thirds of those vehicles we tested had illegal exhausts and have had to pay a £30 fine as well as the cost of making the exhaust legal again. If the driver doesn't remove the modification and is stopped again, we can prosecute through the courts for failing to maintain the silencer, which could attract a fine of up to £500."

"Many motor vehicle enthusiasts modify their exhausts without realising just how loud they're making them, and we receive regular complaints about noisy vehicles and perceived speeding which can often be down to the noise. Now we're using the meter we're also receiving positive feedback from the communities that these loud exhausts are being dealt with."

Teenager locked up for false rape claim

A TEENAGER who gave birth only weeks ago collapsed in tears as she was locked up for making a false rape claim.

The allegation made by Jade Brooks, 19, led to a Haverhill man being wrongly arrested, detained for 13 hours and spending almost two months on bail.

Brooks was led sobbing from the dock at Ipswich Crown Court on Tuesday after Judge David Goodin sentenced her to 15 months in a Young Offenders' Institution.

Brooks had denied a charge of attempting to pervert the course of justice but was found guilty by a jury following a four-day trial in May.

The teenager, who lives in Sherbourne Road, Bury St Edmunds, was told by Judge Goodin that her behaviour in making the false rape allegation had been "malicious".

The judge said: "False complaints of rape do terrible damage and a large disservice to those women who are victims of rape and who make truthful complaints to the police."

During the trial the jury heard how Brooks had been charged after refusing to be video-interviewed by police. Witnesses told how they had seen Brooks emerge from a wooded area in Haverhill where she later alleged she had been raped, laughing and kissing with the man she went on to accuse.

The court heard how the 18-year-old Haverhill man Brooks accused of rape had been arrested at his home in the town after the alleged incident, said to have taken place in July 2008 when she was aged 17.

The man accused of rape said in evidence that he met Brooks in a pub and she had led him into a copse, where they had sex at her request. Later that evening he and Brooks had sex at a friend's house, where again, Brooks had been a willing participant and never complained about what was taking place.

Brooks told the court that she believed she had done nothing wrong.

She denied that as she emerged from the copse she had been laughing or kissing the man and said that she did not accept that the allegation of rape which she made to police had been false.

Shereen Dyer, defending, said that while Brooks accepted the verdict reached by the jury she still stood by her version of events.

She said Brooks previous offending had resulted from drug and alcohol misuse, which she had now curbed.

Giving birth had given Brooks greater stability in her life.

High Street 'fails to provide the goods'

A BUSINESS woman has admitted she never shops in her local town because she and her children cannot find any of the things they want to buy there.

Travel consultant Jennifer Bradnam spoke at the Best of Haverhill meeting at the Days Inn hotel and described the town's High Street offer as poor.

She told speaker Patsy Dell, from St Edmundsbury Borough Council, "You cannot buy a DVD, men's clothes, sports equipment. The list of things you cannot buy in Haverhill is massive. What are you actually doing about it to try to bring shops into the High Street?

"At the moment there is no attraction for anyone. I have lived here all my life but I never shop in Haverhill High Street, because it is impossible to get anything I or my children need. It has not changed in 20 years, if anything it has got worse. It does not matter if it looks nice if it has not got what you want to buy."

Ms Dell said she believed the town centre had become more attractive and it was a case of getting the message across to people like Marks and Spencer that it was a place they should start to think about. Things would not change overnight, but as the population grew and the economy picked up, she believed more retailers would come to the town.

Selena Austin said she believed recent developments like the cinema and restaurant complex had changed the town beyond recognition, but transport links were still a problem. She said: "It is fantastic to be able to go out for a meal and to the cinema in the town. I have always lived in Haverhill, but I would like to live somewhere where I can easily access London. We have clients in London and we need better access and infrastructure to link us to Cambridge. I would like to see some improvements, to stop me having to move away."

Linda Mainland said she did not believe the town would get more shops unless it had a better balance of housing types, to bring more money in.

First rally: club holds Scooter Mania day. CP

Scooter riders joined by police

SCOOTER riders from across East Anglia descended on Haverhill for a local club's first rally.

Haverhill Circles Scooter Club held a Scooter Mania day on Saturday at the Mount Pleasant Club in Withersfield Road, with more than 75 scooters attending from as far as Kings' Lynn. The show started with an organised ride out through the local villages, which was escorted by the local police. When the scooters arrived back a custom show was judged.

A collection was made for the charity Save The Heroes and £190 was raised.

Tony Lockey, club chairman, thanked everyone who helped make the day a success on behalf of members of the Haverhill Circles Club.

the celebrations by holding their own events with a regal theme and new MP Matthew Hancock and Cllr John Griffiths, leader of St Edmundsbury Borough Council, went along to the launch of the gates at either end of the street.

Two pairs of gates, conceived, designed and in part made by young people from Haverhill's schools, now stand in the street with the smaller pair at the Market Square end and the larger pair forming a new gateway to the town at the Lower Downs Slade end.

Mr Hancock said: "In my short time as MP for West Suffolk, I know what a go-ahead place Haverhill is."

"This is a town on the up with increasing confidence and a strengthening sense of identity. I am really pleased to see these gates."

Cllr Karen Richardson, chair of Public Art for the Town Centre of Haverhill (PATCH), the working party that oversaw the project, said: "We wanted to share the wow factor so we kept the gates under wraps until the launch."

"I am so proud of what the young people involved in this project have achieved. They have given the town something quite unique and utterly specific."

Thieves take part of design

TWO heavy steel pipes engraved as bark which were due to be used as part of new gates designed by pupils have been stolen from outside a school.

The pipes were taken from outside Samuel Ward Arts and Technology College in Chalkstone Way, Haverhill, between June 24 and July 5.

They had been engraved to resemble bark and were due to be used as part of the Queen Street leaf shaped gates.

Calls in relation to this incident should be made to Sgt Sarah Bartley at the Haverhill Safer Neighbourhood Team on (01284) 774100 or Crimestoppers on 0800 555 111.

Police bid to stop conmen

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

POLICE have launched a fortnight of action to reduce the number of elderly and vulnerable people falling victim to conmen.

Suffolk Safer Neighbourhood Teams (SNT) will be working closely with crime reduction officers over the two weeks, attending a number of awareness events at local post offices.

The campaign has been launched in response to a number of incidents in recent weeks where criminals have tried to trick their way into a home.

They will often claim to be from a utility company such as the 'water board'. People should be aware that the water board does not exist and anyone saying this should be treated with suspicion.

Police Community Support Officer (PCSO) Caz Terrell, said: "This is a terrible type of crime, one that preys on the vulnerability of an elderly individual who the offender assumes will be more trusting. We are asking for everyone to remain extra vigilant and check any caller's ID before allowing them entry to your home."

Tim Cracknell, crime reduction officer, said: "We have a simple rule to remember - 'Lock, Stop, Chain, Check' - always keep your doors locked, stop to consider whether you're expecting a visitor and that all exits are locked, keep the door on a chain whilst you talk to the caller and check their details with the company they claim to be from.

"It is vital that we get this message out as these simple steps can prevent someone from falling victim to such opportunist criminals."

Suspicious or unusual activity should be reported to Suffolk Constabulary on (01473) 613500 or 999 in an emergency.

Residents across Suffolk are reminded to keep front and back doors locked, even when they are at home, look through the spy-hole or the window to see who is at the door and if it is someone looking for help, only go out to help if you have someone else with you.

Youngsters given a pizza the action

A TASTY class was on the timetable for a group of primary school children when they got the chance to make their own pizzas.

Children from Castle Camps Pre-school spent their Monday morning at the Haverhill store of Domino's. The manager invited the two and four-year-olds to come in and see how to make their own pizza, which was then cooked and given to them for their lunch.

He ensured that all the parents and pre-school staff were entertained too by arranging a competition to see which of his staff could make the perfect pizza in the least amount of time, which was 37 seconds! There was free pizza for everyone and also free gifts for the children.

Deputy manager, Dawn Hunt, who arranged the visit, said: "The children thoroughly enjoyed the whole experience of first making their boxes to then having their very own pizzas put in them for their lunch."

The pre-school still has a few spaces for the new September intake. For further information on Castle Camps Pre-school, ring 07796 292982 between 9am - 3pm term time.

Soul day to help cancer charities

SOUL music fans can enjoy a day of fun and help raise money for cancer charities at the same time.

A group of friends of soul music fan Debby Anzalone, from Stoke by Nayland, are fundraising to pay for a full body CT scan to put her mind at rest following cancer treatment.

Debby, who has two young children, was diagnosed with breast cancer last October and was devastated by the news. She had six chemotherapy sessions, followed by a full mastectomy and 15 rounds of radiotherapy. Cash raised will go towards her scan, with the remainder to cancer charities.

Her friends Lilly Vasquez, from Haverhill, and Sarah Davdar completed the Race for Life and hope to raise another £500 from a

The fun will last from 11.30am to 11.30pm with a list of top soul acts including DJs Marky Mark, James Murphy Solar Radio, Bones-e-Boy, Mystery FM and Enigma Live Radio, Nick Gunn Zero Radio.com, Andy Richards and many more.

Organisers are hoping to attract soul music fans from across the region and there will also be a barbecue and children's entertainment throughout the day, including a bouncy castle, a reptile experience and a nature trail around the three-acre grounds. There will also be a balloon launch at 3pm to remember loved ones who have died.

Lilly said: "One out of three women suffer these days with breast cancer and most are cured with modern technology. We are just a group of friends who love soul music and we wanted to do something to help Debby and raise money for cancer charities."

"I thought it would be really nice for Haverhill to have a big event like this that people can come to. We are not charging admission, but we will be having bucket collections and a lot of people are either coming for nothing or giving half their takings. If any shops or businesses would like to donate raffle prizes or help out we would love to hear from them."

Anyone who can help should contact Lilly on 07789 738326.

Children told enjoy holidays but behave

POLICE are warning youngsters to behave and stay away from dangerous building sites during their summer holidays or face serious consequences.

Pc Will Wright said they were trying to get the message out early before the start of the school holidays, to stress that youngsters could enjoy themselves, but needed to consider others in the community at the same time. He pointed out that there are plenty of activities for young people taking place during the holidays in Haverhill.

Damage to building sites in the town has been a regular problem, especially at Greenfields Way where a new primary school is being built, with children as young as eight found trespassing and putting themselves at risk.

Pc Wright said: "There are fences round building sites for a reason, they are dangerous places, not playgrounds. Buildings like the new school are for people within the community and the damage is impacting on them."

"We are getting a lot of complaints about this and we will be paying special attention to them. We will be dealing robustly with youngsters found causing damage."

"We will be out dealing with anti-social behaviour and alcohol-related incidents. Our message is enjoy your holidays, but be considerate to others. And we would ask parents to be aware of where their children are, what they are doing and whether they are causing a problem. If they are on construction sites they risk injury and also the possibility of getting a criminal record which could affect their lives later on."

Teenager hit by meningitis is walking back to happiness

Pictures: Roger Adams 662290/74.

BUZZING about the kitchen – making a cuppa, checking her mobile, fussing the dog and all the time chatting away – Nicole Wilson is a bundle of energy.

The 18-year-old has just returned from a shopping expedition; when she finally settles on the sofa, she has to move a bulging Dorothy Perkins bag out of the way.

"It's actually a present for my boyfriend's mum," explains Nicole. "I love buying presents. People have done so many nice things for me; I like to do nice things for other people. It's all about spreading the love, isn't it?"

Judging by her smiley face and sunny disposition, you'd think Nicole hadn't a care in the world. In fact, for the last two years, every day has been a battle.

Just before her 17th birthday, while on holiday in Cyprus, Nicole contracted meningitis. A potentially deadly brain infection, it led to blood poisoning and left Nicole in a coma fighting for her life.

"At one point, they said it would be a miracle if I survived the night,"

When teenager Nicole was struck down with meningitis, doctors said she would need "a miracle" to survive the night. Now, despite losing both legs below the knee, most of her fingers and the sight in one eye, she's back on her feet and looking forward to the future. Interview by ALICE RYAN explains the teenager from Sutton, near Ely. "They gave me a 10 per cent chance. But here I am – I'm still here..."

Since coming out of the coma, Nicole has endured a staggering 22 operations. She's lost the sight in one eye, most of her fingers and both legs below the knee. Her kidneys have failed, meaning she's reliant on thrice-weekly dialysis. And her body was thrown into early menopause, which means she may never have children.

"I do try to be positive, but it is very, very, very hard sometimes," admits Nicole. "I can still remember being told my legs had to be amputated: it was horrible – it still is horrible now, to be honest. I don't think I'll ever get over it."

"But I do put a brave face on. You have to, don't you? You have to get on and make the most of things. And I truly believe that things happen for a reason, even if, to start with, you don't really know what that reason is."

Before Nicole fell ill, she was a keen dancer: on leaving school, she won a place at the famous Italia Conti dance academy. "I'd always loved dancing, since I was little," she remembers. "But, after a week at Italia Conti, I decided I didn't like it and came home. I went off on holiday planning to return to studying when I got back, but my plans got cut short..."

One morning, a few days into the holiday, Nicole woke up feeling poorly: tired, achy and burning hot. Away with a friend and her parents, the teenager says she tried to pull herself out of it, dressing and going to lie by the pool. But, unable to face food or drink, Nicole just felt progressively worse; getting in the water, in attempt to cool down, by the time she got out she could barely walk – the aching in her ankle joints had turned into shooting pain.

"Painful joints is actually a symptom of meningitis, not that I knew that at the time," she adds. "I went back to the hotel room to have a lie down, but I had to get up every five minutes to be sick. My friend got her mum who called another lady who was on holiday with us – she was a nurse and she said we should go to hospital, just to be on the safe side."

Nicole noticed two little red pinpricks had appeared on her leg. "That's when 'meningitis' first went through my head; everybody associates a rash with meningitis," she says. "But I was sent home again and told to just take paracetamol and drink plenty of water."

Late that night, Nicole's health took a dramatic dive. Still being sick, aching all over and burning hot, she stumbled to the bathroom and noticed that almost her entire body was covered in violent red pinpricks.

The red marks, signs of the spreading infection in Nicole's bloodstream, were the size 'of coins, like five pence pieces'. Each has left a scar on her skin; in total, she's got 178 scars across her body.

"They were coming up every five seconds," she recounts. "And I was getting breathless. I thought it was because I was panicking – in fact, my lungs were filling up with fluid."

The adults called the hospital, where staff said Nicole should hang on and come back in the morning. But the nurse she was holidaying with insisted she return to hospital straight away. "If I'd waited I wouldn't be here," says Nicole. "It's as simple as that."

Swiftly transferred to a second hospital, Nicole says everything passed in a blur. "By that stage I couldn't walk; one thing I do remember is the doctor carrying me out to the ambulance in his arms, like a baby," she says. "And the rash was changing colour, turning black."

Moved to a third hospital, deemed best equipped to help her, Nicole slipped into a coma; it was, she admits, touch and go whether she'd survive the night. She was diagnosed with a bacterial form of meningitis (inflammation of the protective membranes round the brain, known as the meninges). The infection had developed into blood poisoning – meningococcal septicaemia. Her blood pressure was plummeting, her kidneys and adrenal system had ceased to work and her heart was weak.

Yet, wired up to a ventilator, a dialysis machine and endless drips, Nicole fought on; 12 days later, she opened her eyes. "I couldn't move anything, not even an eyelid," she recalls. "It was so scary. To start with I thought I must have been in a car accident. I hadn't a clue I had meningitis..."

By that stage, Nicole's parents had flown out to be with her. She and her dad were helicoptered back to the UK, where she was admitted to Addenbrooke's; on route, her heart stopped beating and she had to be resuscitated. "On that journey I thought 'This is it now, I'm not going to make it,'" she recounts. "People who've had near-death experiences always say they could see a white light and I did see one. And I had all these weird dreams about angels..."

Back in Cambridge, Nicole still wasn't out of danger. In intensive care for weeks, she battled pneumonia and suffered two serious stomach bleeds: every time she seemed to be getting stronger, she suffered a setback.

Keeping her legs and hands wrapped in foil, to encourage blood circulation, doctors fought to save them. But the septicaemia had caused irreversible damage; gradually, the medics had to admit defeat – and tell Nicole she would lose most of her fingers and both legs.

"It is hard to get your head round something like that," adds Nicole. "If I'm honest, I didn't think I'd walk again."

After six months in hospital, Nicole came home, in a wheelchair, just in time for Christmas 2008. She says her parents – Bev and Wayne, who both quit work to care for her – were "amazing", and credits her older sisters Carly and Stacey, her nanas Shirley and Janet and her auntie Lesley with helping her cope.

Thanks to intensive rehab, her family's encouragement and her own determination, Nicole has learned how to write, eat and even walk again: now the proud owner of two sets of state-of-the-art prosthetic legs – one a pair of bouncy running blades – she is literally back on her feet.

Nicole's legs, which cost an incredible £36,000, were paid for thanks to friends, family and even strangers who've made donations and held fundraisers.

"I can't thank those people enough," she adds. "Someone came to the door the other day with £600 then, a couple of days later, someone else came round with another £700. They've been so generous." All the money is going into a special trust.

The next major hurdle is, she says, getting a new kidney. With neither of her parents eligible to donate a kidney, Nicole is currently on the donor waiting list.

Against the odds, Nicole has regained 95 per cent use of her hands. Determined to be independent, she's taught herself how to do everything from her own hair and make-up to getting in and out of the bath unaided.

Looking to the future, Nicole is currently working towards an NVQ in beauty therapy and has just passed her driving test. Among her ambitions is raising public awareness of meningitis. "I don't think people realise quite how serious it can be," she adds. "If anyone has a high temperature, sickness, aching joints I'd say 'Get yourself checked out': it's better to be safe than sorry."

Having meningitis has, Nicole admits, changed her life completely. "I do feel angry sometimes, but I know none of this is anyone's fault, it's just the way the world goes," she adds. "And it's made me look at life differently: I don't take anything for granted and I live every day as if it could be my last, which is no bad thing, is it?"

Views sought on Hanchett End Business Park Concept Statement

At the current time, St Edmundsbury Borough Council is seeking local views on the future of a key Haverhill site. The land at Hanchett End, located next to the Spirit of Enterprise roundabout, has been identified for employment use for a number of years and the Council is now consulting on the way in which it should be developed.

Importantly, the Council is seeking the views of the public by the 30 July.

Why is the land at Hanchett End important to the town?

The land at Hanchett End is important to the town and its future as it occupies a strategic location at the entrance to Haverhill when approaching from Cambridge. As a result, the site presents an unrivalled opportunity to develop and create an attractive gateway to Haverhill as part of the wider vision that exists for the town.

Carisbrooke, responsible for the Haverhill Business Park, now has controlling interests in this important site and is working with and on behalf of the landowner to progress the land and future plans through the planning and development process.

The current situation

The Council has set out its views on how the land at Hanchett End should be developed through the publication of a document – the draft Concept Statement for the Hanchett End Strategic Employment Site. As the site has already been identified for development with employment uses, a Concept Statement is now required to be produced, which will be used to inform the creation of a future master plan. The Council's draft Concept Statement has outlined that any master plan that is produced will need to include:

- Light industrial, research and office use (i.e. B1 uses only)
- Units for new and small firms involved in high technology and related activities
- Low density development with extensive landscaping

As a result of its interests, Carisbrooke is therefore keen to ensure that an appropriate Concept Statement is finalised from which to create a viable and successful development which meets the aspirations of all involved.

Copies of the draft Concept Statement can now be viewed on the Council's website – www.stedmundsbury.gov.uk/sebc/live/concept-statements-and-masterplans.cfm#hanchett or by visiting the Council offices in Haverhill.

Carisbrooke's position on the draft Concept Statement

Carisbrooke recognises the important opportunity that the site presents to the town but is keen to highlight a number of important factors that should be considered in respect of the draft Concept Statement and the site's future development.

- The first important factor is the significant cost associated with the physical development of the site, which results from the substantial earthmoving necessary to create development platforms and introducing services such as electricity, gas, telecoms and drainage. To this end, certainty is needed that a viable development can be progressed, which will enable the significant costs associated with any project to be absorbed.
- It should be acknowledged that with the site identified for development with business (known as the B1 Use Class), storage and distribution uses (known as the B8 Use Class), it is vital to recognise the lack of a well-established market for the first of these and that the creation of a new research/business park would therefore require a 'leap of faith' on the part of investors and end-users.
- The current draft Concept Statement does not include the economically viable B8 uses but instead solely references the business uses which are not viable as the only form of development on the site. As a result, there is no certainty to Carisbrooke that it can deliver a successful and viable development which meets the aspirations of the Council to achieve a new research/business park and thereby create the gateway wished for.
- To a certain extent, the plan within the draft Concept Statement acknowledges this problem by alluding to the need for 'higher value uses' to be included in order to make the B1 employment development viable. However, Carisbrooke considers the draft Concept Statement needs to be more explicit and identify the extent and type of higher value uses that would be acceptable. Carisbrooke's view is one third of the site should be made over to higher value uses such as residential and retail.

More information about the site and Carisbrooke's views can be found at:

Carisbrooke's covenant to the community – mutual commitment

Subject to receiving the inclusion of one third higher values uses within the draft Concept Statement, Carisbrooke would commit by way of legal agreement to losing the right and ability to develop any storage, distribution or other warehouse type development. Carisbrooke would then commit via further legal agreement to the remaining two thirds of the development being delivered only in the form of office, R & D, light industrial and supporting uses.

Furthermore, the entire infrastructure and environment would be delivered at the same time as any agreements reached over the occupancy of the higher value uses, ensuring that the research park is finalised at the earliest opportunity for all prospective occupiers and the community to see.

How to make your comments known to the Council

Should you be interested in contributing to the way in which this important site is finally developed in the future, you can lodge your comments on the draft Concept Statement with the Council by:

- Completing a response form available from the Council's own website under the masterplans and policies page. This form can either be completed and submitted electronically or via the post.
- By emailing – LDF@stedsbc.gov.uk
- By telephoning the Council's Planning Policy team on 01284 757352

Questions or further information

Should you have any questions about the site or Carisbrooke's views on its future development, please do not hesitate to contact the team on 0800 298 7040 or visit the website at www.haverhillresearchpark.com.

KEEN runner Sara Sheppard is taking on her biggest challenge yet by running 56 miles from London to Brighton.

Sara has been training hard for the event in September, completing 30-mile runs around villages including Balsham and Fulbourn.

She will be raising money for the British Heart Foundation and, having had several family members suffer from heart problems, she is hoping to raise as much as possible.

Sara, of Blenheim Close, Haverhill, said: "I have done a marathon and a 40-mile run, so this was the next challenge I guess."

"I think being sponsored gives you extra motivation. When I am soaked on the top of the South Downs it will be an extra incentive to carry on."

"I would like to say a big thank you to my husband, Chris and son, Jack, who have been 100 per cent behind me during the training and so supportive and encouraging."

"They have to put up with my tiredness after long runs and especially at the moment whilst I am at the peak of training between 60-70 miles per week."

"Also, a big thank you to my best friend and running partner Zoe, who has also been hugely encouraging and has trained with me whenever she can. She also comes with me on the day as my support crew which means so much to me."

Primary pupils bowled over by success

PRIMARY school children tried their hand at a different sport and found they were quite good at it.

A group of Year 3 and Year 4 children from Westfield Primary School in Haverhill have been learning how to bowl at the Haverhill Bowls Club, supported by Lisa Andrews and Mandi Clasper.

Under the tuition of club members Bernie, Tony and Jenny they all learnt the finer points of the game.

All the children found that bowling was not quite as easy as they first thought and there are definite skillful techniques to be learnt.

During a special awards ceremony the children were given a medal for effort and those who managed to win the bowling competition got a trophy.

A spokesman for the school said: "The children were thrilled with the kindness and generosity of the club members who donated their own time each week for free and also provided the prizes from their own pocket. Westfield would like to say a huge thank you to everyone in the bowls club who helped to make this possible."

Mrs Andrews said: "The children have really enjoyed coming down each week and have gained so much from the individual tuition they have been given. Who knows, maybe Westfield is nurturing some future bowls champions."

For anyone else who would like to try their hand at the sport, indoor bowling will begin in the third week of September for adults and training sessions are on Thursday from 4.30pm to 6.30pm.

On a roll: pupils with their medals and certificates. CP

Seeking benefits help could cost you dearly

Haverhill Citizens Advice Bureau this month looks at the pitfalls and costs involved in paying a company to claim back-dated benefits you may be entitled to receive.

Q: I have seen adverts for companies who say they offer free benefits advice and who say they can help you claim back-dated benefits on a 'no-win, no-fee basis'. How do they work and are they a good idea?

A: With more than £16 billion in means-tested benefits and tax credits currently going unclaimed every year, it is definitely worth checking that you are receiving everything you are entitled to. You can get a free, independent benefits check from your local CAB. However, there are companies you can pay for the same service. They often describe themselves as offering "free" benefits advice, but if they help you claim any back-dated benefits they will take up to a hefty 45 per cent out of any back-pay that would have otherwise gone straight to you. If you are thinking about approaching one of these companies make sure you read the small print. Depending on the amount of back-pay you receive this could be as much as £1,500.

What they are doing isn't illegal, but the service they offer is available for free from independent advice sources, such as your local CAB, where you can get a free benefits check up to make sure you are receiving everything you are entitled to, and that all of any back-dated money goes in your pocket. If you are unsure about what benefits you are entitled to, or whether a company is going to charge you a fee or a percentage of any money you get back, you can contact your local CAB for a free benefits check or go to www.adviceguide.org.uk

Haverhill CAB can be found at the Centre for Voluntary Agencies, in Lower Downs Slade, Haverhill, CB9 9HB. The bureau is open for anybody to drop in without an appointment between 11am and 4pm on Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays and between 11am and 2pm on Fridays.

For telephone advice phone (01440) 704012 on Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays between 9.30am and 11am and on Wednesday from noon to 4pm. Appointment for general advice can be made by arrangement on (01440) 762194. www.adviceguide.org.uk also provides information. If you would like to join the bureau as a volunteer please ring 0845 1 264 264.

Inquest date for sea swim victim

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

AN inquest into the death of a pub chef, who drowned while late-night swimming on a Spanish holiday, is to be held in September.

Mark Porter was 29 when he died last October along with Michelle Clydesdale, 24, from Scotland, after reportedly being hit by 'freak waves' on the beach at the resort of Salou. Mr Porter worked at the Bell pub in High Street, Haverhill, and lived at Haverhill Road, Little Wratting.

A documentary inquest into his death, with no witnesses called, will take place at the Athenaeum in Bury St Edmunds on September 21.

Reports at the time said Mr Porter and Ms Clydesdale were part of a group who met on a night out and went for a midnight swim. Their bodies were washed up on the beach at 2.30am.

Devastated parents Bill Porter, 55, and his wife Polly, 55, were told their only son had died, by one of his best friends Lewis Rice, who had tried in vain to pull him from the water.

Handover: Duncan Howlett, left, takes on the role of president of the Rotary Club of Haverhill and District from Robert Haylock.

New president for Rotary Club

A NEW president has been appointed at Haverhill and District Rotary Club.

Duncan Howlett is an agricultural adviser and a previous district governor for Rotary in the East Anglia region.

Robert Haylock, the outgoing president, has had a successful year which culminated in the Charity Golf Classic.

This event, jointly organised with Haverhill Golf Club, raised about £6,000 this year for St Nicholas Hospice and local charities.

Flats plan for empty pub

PLANS to convert an empty pub into flats and build six homes in its grounds have been received by planners.

Greene King has applied to St Edmundsbury Borough Council for consent to build six dwellings, following demolition of an existing garage at the Australian Arms in Hamlet Road, Haverhill. It also includes converting the existing public house into three flats, with associated garaging, parking and upgraded vehicular access.

Cricket bowling machine stolen

A CRICKET bowling machine and lawnmower parts were stolen by thieves who broke into a garage.

The theft happened at Arms Lane, Kedington, between 11am on Tuesday last week and 10am the following day. Calls in relation to this incident should be made to the Crime Investigation Bureau on (01473) 613500.

Thieves take car's hubcaps

ALL four hubcaps were stolen from a silver Ford Ka in a parking area.

The theft happened at Beaconsfield Court, Haverhill, between 9pm last Thursday and 7.20am on Friday. Calls in relation to this incident should be made to Sgt Sarah Bartley on (01284) 774100.

Music and dance meet at festival

The marriage of music and dance will form the centrepiece of this year's Cambridge Summer Music Festival, which is in full swing.

The month-long festival, taking place at venues across the city, will combine timeless works by the likes of Chopin, Bach, Stravinsky and Paganini with the ebullient rhythms of Spanish flamenco and Brazilian Capoeira in an innovative celebration of music and movement.

This year's programme promises exciting premières and innovations, as well as the return of some firm favourites, resulting in a joyous tribute to the wealth of classical and contemporary music in its many forms.

The feast of music continues this week with the Aurora Orchestra at the Cambridge Corn Exchange tomorrow, who will take audiences on a journey to South America with their collaboration with capoeira group, Cordão de Ouro, combining the skills of one of the most dynamic forces in British classical music with the visual excitement of Afro-Brazilian martial dance.

On Saturday, The Dante Project at Emmanuel Reformed Church sees Dante's journey of enlightenment through Hell, Purgatory and Paradise vividly re-imagined and choreographed by Susie Crow (Ballet in Small Spaces) to music by Beethoven, Ligeti, and Cambridge's own Jeremy Thurlow.

Dance also plays a central role within a number of other concerts, as found in Bach's suite movements and Stravinsky ballet music and other transcriptions of dances being performed on the organ.

The festival has often served as a platform for showcasing complete works, and this year there are two, both for violin. All Brahms sees award-winning soloist and chamber musician Victoria Sayles performing Brahms' three violin sonatas, with accompaniment from Martin Cousin on piano, while international virtuoso Jack Glatzer will perform two recitals of Bach and Paganini, in which he plays the entire Paganini Caprices.

The Classic Buskers return to Cambridge Union Society today with a dance-orientated programme including Strauss' Blue Danube and Chopin's Minute Waltz - played on the wrong instruments at the wrong speeds.

There are more free concerts this year, including the lunchtime Fitz Proms.

A number of the lunchtime recitals will be given by young virtuosi, with gifted pianists Mishka Momen, Cordelia Williams and Maria Marchant all performing a variety of works with Chopin as a key theme.

There are more than 20 venues, and this year the University Botanic Garden plays host to two Wednesday concerts.

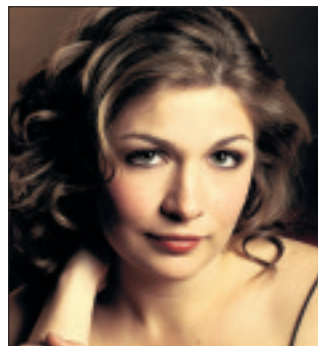

Head east to Fulbourn's St Vigor's Church on August 1 and you'll discover the enchanting sounds of Kosmos. This vibrant female string trio will be joined by prize-winning accordionist Milos Milivojevic for a concert exploring the boundaries of western classical and contemporary and world music through Arabic, Gypsy, Balkan, Jazz, Klezmer and Tango.

There's a chance to spend an intimate evening with one of the world's most renowned musicians when Julian Lloyd Webber joins forces with pianist Pam Chowhan to perform Debussy's Celloe Sonata, plus works by Bach, Faure and Piazzolla.

The closing concert, on Saturday, August 7, will take place in the magnificent surroundings of King's College Chapel, as the Academy of St Martin in the Fields is joined by guitarist Morgan Szymanski for a programme of summery serenade favourites including Grieg, Mendelssohn, and Vivaldi.

■ Cambridge Summer Music Festival 2010 runs until Saturday, August 7 at venues across the city. Tickets are available from Cambridge Corn Exchange Box Office on (01223 357851) or online from www.cambridgesummermusic.com, where you'll find details of all concerts and events.

Taste of the orient, fresh from your veggie patch

Checking out the price of bags of oriental greens at the supermarket is enough to make most gardeners want to grow their own.

You can pay pounds for bags of mixed greens which add flavour to tangy salads and quick stir-fries, but all too often you don't use the whole bag in one sitting, so the rest is left hanging around in the fridge until it turns into an inedible green soggy mass.

It would be so much easier to pick the leaves you need straight from your garden, so there's less waste and guaranteed freshness.

With this in mind, Which? Gardening, the Consumers' Association magazine, tested 14 types of oriental veg to see how well they can grow either in your vegetable patch or in containers on the patio.

Researchers grew eight leafy vegetables in 30cm containers filled with peat-free compost.

by Hannah Stephenson

One pot of each was treated as a cut-and-come-again crop, while a second pot was left to produce larger plants. All were sown three times – in late March, late May and late July. Slower growing veg were grown in the ground.

Cut-and-come-again crops which were trialled included mizuna, mustard greens and amaranth, while other popular veg included pak choi, Chinese cabbage and giant radishes.

Among the easiest and quickest was mizuna, which can be added to salads and stir fries and is best grown on its own as it can outgrow and swamp most other salad plants. As a baby leaf it produced 300g per pot from a March sowing from the first cut and 185g from the second cut. Summer sowings proved less prolific and the young plants were damaged by flea beetles.

The tests found pak choi, which is delicious lightly steamed and served with garlic and oyster sauce, is easy to grow from seed, although it's slower than other oriental greens. The best results were seen from the early sowing but later batches were also successful so it's worth planting throughout the summer, although not just after midsummer when it will bolt.

Chinese cabbage is best allowed to grow into a mature plant so it was grown in the ground. It was sown into small pots in mid-June and planted out in July – don't sow any earlier or it will bolt – and forms a dense heart like an iceberg lettuce. You'll need to cover it in fine netting to keep caterpillars at bay and it may be susceptible to mildew and mealy aphid, although the outer leaves can be thrown away. In the tests, when harvested, each head weighed just over 100g.

Mustard greens, which have a strong, peppery flavour, are also best used as a cut-and-come-again crop to perk up salads. The most successful sowing in the trial was the earliest sowing of the large-leaved 'Red Giant', as later sowings suffered from flea beetle damage. Other types worth trying are 'Golden Streaks' and 'Green Frills'.

Amaranth, which if allowed to grow larger can be cooked like spinach, did better from later sowings, producing plants up to 25cm tall which didn't attract flea beetles and was less prone to bolting. It can also be used as a cut-and-come-again crop to add to baby leaf salads.

Among the most impressive-looking vegetables were mooli and beauty heart radishes. Mooli was sown in mid-July, thinned to 30cm apart and by late August they had produced massive white roots weighing up to 750g each and are ideally used grated in salads. Beauty

Thriving: Mantanghong radishes grown as part of a test to see how well oriental veg can grow in your vegetable patch or patio containers. CP heart produced large round roots with brightly coloured centres, sown similarly to mooli. Researchers found that the quality was variable and concluded that this type of radish needs a long, warm summer.

Most of the veg tested are members of the cabbage family, suffering from the same pests, so you have to be vigilant against slugs and snails, flea beetles, cabbage white caterpillars and mealy aphids.

Tips to secure a summer sale

AT the height of summer, the warm weather and those balmy evenings create an all-round feelgood factor.

But if you want to sell your home before the onset of autumn, there are a few key factors to remember which will ensure you needn't rely simply on sunshine and pretty gardens to attract a buyer.

■ De-clutter. Firstly, make the entrance hall inviting by removing coats and shoes and then turn your attentions to the rest of the home – clearing away any unnecessary clutter. Likewise, ensure the carpet is clutter-free to give the whole home a feeling of space.

■ Make sure your windows are sparkling clean both inside and out. Draw curtains well back so that buyers can take in the views of your carefully tended garden.

■ Show off every room to its full potential and original purpose. Although you may be using the dining room as a playroom, clear away the toys and set the table to show how many people can be seated. Likewise, temporarily move any home office equipment out of the spare room.

■ Let the fresh air in. Musty-smelling rooms will have potential buyers running back out the door. Summer allows you to open windows without fear of making the house feel chilly.

■ Lighten up rooms that don't benefit from natural light by adding table lamps, and also ensure that light switches are wiped clean.

■ Keep your lawn in order. Summer-dried brown patches ruin the effect of a pretty garden, so keep your grass as green as possible. If you can't avoid the problem, some strategically-placed garden furniture may help! Regularly water summer containers and baskets to prolong their blooms.

■ Pet hates. Although your cat or dog may be the cutest thing ever, dishes of pet food or whiffy pet beds can be a complete turn-off (particularly if the new owner doesn't have pets of their own), so ensure bowls are clean and / or put out of sight. Some people are very nervous of dogs of any size, so it's best to get your partner or neighbour to take the animal for a walk while the viewing takes place.

Commercial director Nick Salmon, of Harrison Murray, said: "While we may be in the middle of the selling season, and seeing more properties coming onto the market, consumer confidence among buyers is fragile – particularly in view of very low levels of mortgage lending.

"However, there are buyers out there, and sellers can adhere to some simple but highly effective tips to warm up their chances of a summer sale."

Honda CR-Z is set to sparkle

Hyundai revamps the i20

THE Hyundai i20 is getting blue on the inside and greener under the bonnet.

Minor changes to the aerodynamics and engine have resulted in a boost in fuel efficiency for all engines, while the interior is now more stylish and better equipped.

The best-selling 1.2-litre petrol engine, already one of the most efficient in the class, drops its emissions by 5g/km to 119g/km. This results in a tax disc costing just £30 and company car tax benefit-in-kind rates of just 10 per cent.

Buyers wanting the extra power of the 1.4-litre version will see even greater savings, with the Inside the Hyundai i20: Available to order now, from £9,250.

Style models dropping by 13g/km to just 129g/km. This results in a drop of two Vehicle Excise Duty bands and a 4.3mpg improvement.

The two diesel engines also see significant savings, with the 75PS model dropping by 6g/km to just 110g/km. The 90PS version gains a six-speed gearbox which helps it achieve a 7.2 per cent fuel economy boost.

These improvements have been made possible by adding a small spoiler to the underneath of the car to improve airflow around the wheels, fitting an Eco Drive indicator in the instrument panel to suggest the best point to change gear, using low friction engine oil and an alternator management system.

Inside, there are two blue additions. Firstly, the dashboard and instrument illumination is now blue rather than red, bringing the i20 into line with larger Hyundai models.

Secondly, Bluetooth phone connectivity with voice recognition is now added as standard on all models except the entry-level Classic.

The new i20 is available to order now, with prices starting at £9,520. All i20s are covered by a manufacturer-backed, unlimited mileage Five Year Warranty and are equipped with ESP and air conditioning as standard.

Golf BlueMotion wins 'What Car?' green car of year title

THE 2010 What Car? Awards were announced at Twickenham Stadium in Middlesex on Wednesday, writes Alice Hughes.

The winners included Fiat 500, Jaguar and Volkswagen, and they were all recognised as motoring's most economical and environmentally-friendly cars.

Firstly, the judges chose the 1.2-litre version of the Fiat 500 for top supermini honours – the same award as the one picked up by the popular city car in 2009. The vehicle is fitted with Fiat's fuel-saving Start&Stop system and can be ordered in three different levels – Pop, Sport and Lounge – along with a limited edition 500byDiesel version.

"It's everything that a green supermini should be – affordable, fun and easy on the environment," comment What Car?

Green small car star: The Fiat 500.

editor-in-chief Steve Fowler.

The Fiat 500 is priced from £9,465 for the 1.2 Pop.

Jaguar won the "Luxury Car" category with its XJ 3.0 Diesel V6 Luxury model, with the What Car? judges verdict stating that "in a class dominated by understated design, the Jaguar XJ's styling takes your breath away. It's powerful yet athletic, imposing yet sleek. No other luxury car gets as much attention for the way it looks".

Last but not least, the Volkswagen's BlueMotion range of vehicles won a total of three awards – including overall "Green Car of the Year".

The Golf BlueMotion was named "Best Green Small Family Car", beating eight other category winners to claim the overall "Green Car of the Year" title. The Passat BlueMotion won the "Green Family Car" award.

The Golf BlueMotion's impressive economy is achieved through a package of measures which includes a Start/Stop system, low rolling resistance tyres, battery regeneration, revised gearing, a multi-function computer providing visual gear change recommendation for optimum fuel consumption and aerodynamic changes.

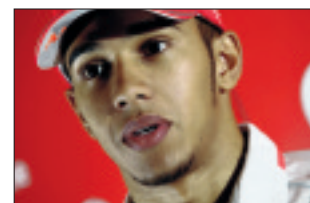

Commenting on the Golf BlueMotion, Steve Fowler said:

The greenest car around: The Volkswagen Golf BlueMotion.

"The Golf is a well-deserved award winner: carbon dioxide emissions are a paltry 99g/km, making it exempt from Vehicle Excise Duty and its average fuel economy is 74.3mpg. So as well as being impressively green, the Golf is classy, well made, practical, safe, brilliant to drive and an affordable long-term investment. "There surely aren't many other virtues you need?"

Lewis Hamilton: Points out that ESC has potential to save 250 lives a year.

Many Brits say ESC is 'pointless'

A CAR anti-skid protection system that too few Britons are using has been displayed in Bedfordshire by motor racing star Lewis Hamilton.

Only two in five drivers know of the existence of electronic stability control (ESC) with an AA/Populus poll showing that more than a quarter of 18 to 34-year-olds see the system as pointless.

ESC was shown off on Tuesday by Hamilton – who finished second in Sunday's British Grand Prix – at a safety event at the Millbrook Proving Ground.

The AA said that although ESC has the potential to save 250 lives a year in the UK, car showroom staff had not promoted the system enough.

While 27-28 per cent of 18 to 34-year-olds saw ESC as pointless, only 13-14 per cent of over-55s shared this view, the AA said.

Only a third of Britons wanted the system in their next car compared with 60 per cent of Germans.

AA president Edmund King said: "Buyers of new cars in the UK place much reliance on what we are told by sales staff at garages but it appears that many are not told about ESC.

"We hope the Choose ESC campaign will inform UK motorists about the next best safety device since the seat-belt and prompt them to ask for it when they buy a car."

Seat's sizzling summer savers

The Seat Leon FR: There's great deals to be had.

SEAT is unveiling a plethora of stunning summer offers across the bulk of its growing range of sporty, dynamic models as the Spanish brand looks to build on a solid first six months of 2010.

The extensive suite of new car deals – which includes not-to-be-missed discounts off new SEAT RRP's, the option of low rate finance offers or free servicing bundles – is designed to support SEAT's push for an even larger slice of the UK new car market.

To the end of June this year SEAT had registered more than 17,300 new cars – an increase of more than 26 per cent, or 3,600-plus, on the same period in 2009 – to grab a record 1.6 per cent share of the market.

Retail sales are up significantly, despite the continued uncertain economic climate, but it is the Brand's fleet and business sales performance that's continuing to produce the most exceptional numbers. In the first half of this year sales have soared by nearly 40 per cent as the revitalised SEAT UK fleet sales team continues its outstanding roll.

Now the Spanish firm is turning the screw on its competitors with a package of sensational retail deals that include limited-time price reductions of up to £2,000, highly attractive finance plans or the option of free servicing deals on certain models.

The tantalising offers cover almost every model in the sporty car maker's exciting range, meaning any would-be buyer should find a model that perfectly suits both their taste and their budget.

Head of operations at SEAT UK, Richard Harrison, explained: "Ahead of the traditional sales surge in September our dealers are expecting a really busy summer as we've pulled out all the stops to produce a series of fabulous offers that make owning one of our models even more affordable."

"We have worked really hard to ensure there are savings to be had across the range. This means that anyone on the look-out for a new car will find a great deal on everything from our stylish Ibiza supermini to the popular Leon family hatchback and luxurious Exeo executive saloon or estate."

As part of SEAT's array of tempting summer savings selected Ibiza models bought before the end of July will see their recommended retail price drop by a nice, round £1,000; while £1,500 is being cut from the price of many Leon, Altea and Altea XL models.

And the reductions get even bigger as the proportions of the models increase, with £2,000 shaved off the RRP of the luxurious Exeo executive saloon and Exeo ST estate, and a fantastic £2,000 cut from the price of the seven-seater Alhambra MPV.

'All we want is decent roads to ride on', say motorcyclists

MOTORCYCLE riders think that the most important thing the new Government should do for motorcyclists is improve road conditions, according to a Motor Cycle News survey.

The poll, carried out for Ride to Work Day July 21, was responded to by more than 6,500 people.

Almost half (43 per cent) of the motorcyclists interviewed believe improving road conditions is the priority. This was closely followed by improving car driver's awareness of motorcyclists (36 per cent).

One in ten riders think the Government should reduce the road tax in line with the journey efficiency of motorcycles and 11 per cent would like to see the use of bikes in bus lanes expanded.

Just under a quarter (24 per

cent) of the riders surveyed use their motorcycle to commute daily and a further 22 per cent of riders are using their bikes a few times a week, demonstrating that almost half of the UK's riders regularly commute to work. With this extensive experience of the UK road network the Government needs to recognise the demands from the riding public.

Improving road conditions as well as the road furniture such as crash barriers and signage can all help to improve road safety. The survey also reveals that over half of the riders (58 per cent) think that improved road conditions and safety features will encourage more new people to get involved in riding bikes or scooters.

Steve Kenward, CEO for the MCI commented: "Riders' views are important and we are all aware that better roads and an improved road infrastructure will improve road safety and encourage more riders onto the roads.

"As bikes can help to reduce congestion, reduce pollution and reduce journey times for all road users improving road conditions can only be a positive step. It would also demonstrate a commitment to fully integrating powered two-wheelers into transport policy and planning."

Meanwhile motorcyclists looking to protect themselves, their pillion passengers and bikes from the effects of heat will benefit from a no cost upgrade to one of Zircotec's performance colour range of thermal barrier coatings. This offer, available until the end of August, represents a 15 per cent saving and provides riders with a range of 14 colour finishes to choose from.

Zircotec's thermal barrier is increasingly used by road and race motorcyclists to reduce the effects of heat that affect bike reliability and rider safety. Coating the exhaust system keeps heat within the pipe lowering surface temperatures and radiant heat.

"Motorcyclists specify our coating for safety, reliability, aesthetic and performance reasons," says Zircotec's sales director Peter Whyman. "Together with a trend for upswept and exposed exhausts which could burn the rider, pillion or damage the panniers, there is a growing requirement to manage heat. Zircotec provides a fit-and-forget solution."

Zircotec's ceramic coating also solves the problem of polished exhausts turning blue. "Our range offers a durable finish proven at all levels of motorsport including F1 and motorbike racing. The firm has been a long time supporter of the Smith Brother's Supermono team and has recently coated their exhaust system with a new colour."

Call Zircotec on (01235) 546050 before the end of August to take advantage of the offer. Exhaust systems need to be sent to the firm's Abingdon factory and are usually returned coated within 10 working days.

The new BMW X3: Cheaper than the outgoing model.

New BMW X3 on way

The new BMW X3 is set to raise the bar in the premium sports activity market this year when the latest model goes on sale in the UK.

With what will be the lowest-emission four-wheel drive model in the sector, the first to have start-stop with auto transmission, unparalleled agility, significantly upgraded cabin and a raft of sector-first technology, the new BMW X3 will set a new benchmark.

Along with a class-leading diesel engine, the new X3 offers numerous chassis configurations courtesy of Variable Damper Control, as well as UK-specific equipment packages and innovations such as Head-up Display and online connectivity, thanks to ConnectedDrive.

Powered by a 2.0-litre four-cylinder turbo diesel engine with aluminium crankcase and common rail direct injection, the new X3 delivers a maximum power output of 184hp at 4,000rpm and peak torque of 380Nm between 1,750 and 2,750rpm. This results in a 0-62mph time of 8.5 seconds, and a top speed of 130mph, yet CO2 emissions for this four-wheel drive vehicle are only 149g/km, with an average fuel consumption of 50.4 mpg.

Other engines will be launched at a later date, but in the UK the BMW X3 xDrive20d is expected to account for around 80 per cent of all sales.

The new X3 xDrive20d with automatic transmission achieves identical acceleration and fuel use with a CO2 emission level of 147g/km. This reduction in emissions is thanks to the X3 being the first UK BMW model to team Auto Start-Stop technology with the optional eight-speed automatic transmission. At £30,490, the new BMW X3 xDrive20d SE is actually £115 less than the outgoing model, yet standard kit includes with Nevada leather, two-zone aircon, iDrive controller and colour display.

Fit and forget: Exhausts.

Third of women are earning more than their partners, study shows

ALMOST a third of women in the workplace are earning more than their partners, putting them increasingly in the role of breadwinner, a recent study reveals.

According to the Women and Work Survey 2010 commissioned by Grazia magazine, almost half of the 2,000 females questioned were either out-earning their partners (30 per cent) or earning as much (19 per cent) and one in 10 already had a house-husband.

One possible explanation given by the poll was that the recession hit male employment, shifting the burden of responsibility in relationships.

The survey found women did not wish to leave the world of work, with only 11 per cent wanting to stop work completely.

Respondents were "realistic" about the downsides of full-time motherhood, with almost half of all full-time mothers admitting they hated "not earning their own money", while 32 per cent missed work itself.

More than two thirds (69 per cent) of mothers said they still "preferred to keep their hand in at work", with mothers of under-3s stating they "preferred to work, albeit preferably part-time" (60 per cent), rather than be a "full-time mum" (40 per cent).

Women with full-time jobs said their employment made them feel "worthwhile" (50 per cent) and "confident" (51 per cent).

However, the survey also pinpointed a new battleground emerging between parents and the child-free.

Nine out of 10 women said child-free workers resented the flexi-hours and time off mothers can have, while 71 per cent said other women were their harshest critics in the workplace, while a third of female directors thought mothers were less productive.

More than half of all working women thought mothers' employment rights might be putting employers off hiring women (53 per cent) and 74 per cent of female directors thought this was now the case.

But rather than backtracking on rights, they would rather give working fathers the same rights as working mothers (52 per cent) to stop any discrimination.

Jane Bruton, editor of Grazia, said: "We're in the middle of a huge social shift. Women are increasingly earning as much or more than their partners and many of these women get a great amount out of their working lives."

"For many of these high earners it makes more sense for their partners to take on a greater domestic role."

"Of course, there are going to be mixed feelings about this, but it is definitely something that is becoming more accepted."

WE'LL GET YOU IN THE GAME

Haverhill's rookies stun Aztecs in final

HAVERHILL Rovers under-nines' made a mockery of their inexperience to win the Linton Aztecs tournament. The team, formed only three months ago and with an average age of seven, were the underdogs against teams one or two years older. But despite losing the first game 7-2, the team, managed by Joe White, regrouped and reached the final where they beat the host club 2-1.

It's Blues heaven in the all-Thurlow showdown

THURLOW were singing the Blues after they beat the club's Yellow team in the final of the Whittlesford Warriors tournament.

However, it took a penalty shoot-out to separate the under-13 sides after the final finished 1-1, Tommy Bates putting the Blues ahead only for Mason Iron to equalise.

The Yellows had the best chances to win it in normal time – Jordan Ryan hitting the bar and Ashley Botten's lob just going over – before Darren Cooley made a decisive save in the shootout and Ryan Mule slotted the winning penalty.

Both sides had earlier finished runners-up in their pools after losing their opening games. The Blues edged a nervy semi-final against Papworth Blasters on penalties after a 0-0 draw, Cooley again keeping his nerve in the shoot-out, while the Yellows beat hot favourites Haslingfield 3-1 with Mason Iron sending them on their way.

■ West Wrattling's Reds team won the under-15 section at Whittlesford, when Zak Ollington scored the only goal against Sawston as the penalty lottery loomed.

To get into the final against the four-times champions, the Reds, unbeaten in their group, had to face their Blues team, who had lost once.

The Reds won 2-1 – both goals coming from Kieran O'Neill – although the Blues missed a disputed penalty before Matt Burley scored two minutes from time to set up a lively finish. If the Blues had got

Walden turn it on

SAFFRON Walden have stepped up the pressure at the top of the Adams Harrison Midweek League, Division One table after inflicting the first defeat of the season on Haverhill.

Nick Hurford (30) and Joe Barrs (28) helped Walden to 128 for 9 but Haverhill fell short on 120, despite 26 from Simon Youngs in a match where Steve Saville had the best bowling figures of 3 for 30.

And the only other 100 per cent record in the league also fell,

Division 3B pacesetters Helions Bumpstead ending 10 runs adrift of Balsham, whose 149 for 2 was built around an unbeaten 52 from Steve Saunders.

Helions, who need to win their final game to gain promotion, got to 139 for 6 on the back of 33 from Andy Searle and Andy Rose's 29.

Abington can clinch the Division Two title at Long Melford after beating Hundon. Dave Pimblett (65 not out) and Matt Thomas (36) helped the

>> Rugby: Inter-Schools Tag Rugby

Drapkin get the winner's tag

THE Stanley Drapkin School, from Steeple Bumpstead, came out top in the inter-schools tag rugby competition hosted by Haverhill rugby club at the Castle playing fields.

Members of the club had volunteered their services over a two-week period to coach youngsters in school years 1 and 2 at local primary schools. And the scheme culminated in the tournament, held in conjunction with the South-West Suffolk Schools Partnership. Twelve teams of Year 2 pupils from 10 schools entered the event, with the Haverhill trio of New Cangle, Westfield and Burton End lined up alongside Stanley Drapkin.

And it was the Steeple Bumpstead school which came out top in the final, beating Westfield by one try to nil.

through, it would have been a repeat of their group game against Sawston, a game settled by a Tom Pinker strike.

■ West Wrattling's under-14s flexed their muscles for the new Cambridge and District Colts League campaign by beating Withersfield, high-flyers in the A division last term, 3-2 in a friendly.

Liam Mitchell equalised an early Withersfield goal before Mark Coulson made it 2-1. The home side turned the screw, hitting the bar in their attempt to get back on level terms only to fall further behind when Coulson struck again for the team who won the Alconbury tournament and reached three other competition semi-finals.

Withersfield got some reward for their pressure with a late goal.

Wrattling are looking to strengthen after moving rapidly through the divisions, and are keen to sign defensive and midfield players. Any one interested should contact Kevin Ager on 01440 821844 or 07769706589, or email agerkevin@yahoo.co.uk

Karate

ANDY Dziuba and Andy Arnold, both members of the Haverhill Shotokan Karate Club, have been awarded Black Belt Shodan.

Dziuba achieved first level and Arnold the second after they were put through physical tests of karate combination moves (Kihon), pre-arranged attacks and defences (Kumite), set moves in order (Kata) and then free fighting against three others, before completing a theory test conducted in Japanese terminology.

They were then asked to give a brief history of Karate and parts of the body. Dziuba was then required to name the major bones of the body before Arnold had to name the main muscle groups, the Dojo Kun (training hall code) and explain what it meant to him.

Dziuba and Arnold's clubmates joined Saffron Walden and Great Sampford Shotokan Karate clubs for their annual tournament which consisted of individual kata, team kata, individual kumite and freestyle fighting disciplines.

Dylan Naude came away with victories in two individual disciplines, while Dylan Morgan-

Owen and Evan Sorrell both enjoyed individual and group success.

For the individual kata, Kiernan Harding took first place in the white, blue and red belts group, Morgan-Owen in the orange, yellow and green belts, and Naude in the purple and above belts. The team kata was the next test, Sorrell joining Mitchell Morgan and Bradley Richardson to win the white, blue and red belts group, while Morgan-Owen, Caitlin Benham and Cameron Hinds won in the orange, yellow and green belts. In the purple and above group, the winners were Izzy Kingston, Alicia Laidler and Grace Kidd. For fighters holding green belts and below, the individual kumite saw Sorrell take first in his white, blue and red belt category, before Callum McGuire battled to victory in the orange, yellow and green belts. And in the freestyle fighting discipline, Naude topped group one, with Connor Hirst and Toby Walker successful in groups two and three.

■ Haverhill Shotokan Karate Club, members meet at the Chalkstone Middle School on Wednesdays and Sundays, and any prospective fighters should contact Gill Payne on 01440 708365.

We're on the up again

HAVERHILL have taken another major step towards promotion to the top flight of the Marshall Hatchick Two Counties Championship.

They deposed Ipswich at the pinnacle of Division Two, winning their top-of-the-table showdown by 17 runs to spark a golden weekend for the club with all four sides victorious.

Fired by a major innings from Simon Youngs, Haverhill reached 174 for 9, whipping out Ipswich for 157 thanks to three wickets from coach Chris Silverwood.

"As you get nearer the end of the season, you get more hopeful of promotion," said chairman Steven Woodley.

"But when you get into August you've got holidays to worry about.

Haverhill go top on four-some day

"The first team will obviously take players from the seconds, but that will weaken them and we want them to go up as well.

"We'll just have to keep plugging away."

They are at home to struggling Felixstowe on Saturday.

■ Phil Jones and Sam Hartshorn powered the seconds to a thumping 127-run win against Long Melford II to stay third in Division Six.

Opener Jones cracked 83 and Hartshorn 82 – both slammed 12 fours and a six – and shared a 136-run partnership as the home side thundered to 286 for 8 with all the batsmen chipping in.

The only disappointment for Haverhill, though, was that they failed to bowl out their opponents, who battled to 159 for 7 against Dan Webb (2 for 11), Steve Fox (2 for 58) and man-of-the-match Jones (2 for 6).

The seconds travel to Kesgrave on Saturday.

■ Adam Dellar blasted a century as Haverhill's Sunday side romped to a 10-wicket win at Woolpit in the Hunts County Bats League, Division One.

They were set a target of 153 for 8, a testimony to the visitors' bowlers who restricted the home side on a wicket which promised big scores. The bowling partnerships of Russell Davis and Robbie Ketteridge, and spin twins Antony Phillips and Sam Pass gave their batsmen reason for optimism and, after a cautious start, first-team skipper Dellar and Steve Fox set about the attack.

From 37 for 0 after 10 overs with the run-rate rising, they cut loose and were 135 for 0 10 overs later, the 16th over proving particularly fruitful as Dellar battered 18 which included four boundaries.

Another over went for 16 as Dellar finished unbeaten on 110 and Fox 25 and the win was sealed, rather tamely, by four byes.

■ Fourteen-year-old Jack Mitchison took 4 for 20 off six overs to put the skids under Woolpit Academy and inspire Haverhill II to an eight-wicket win. He ripped the heart out of the opposition and, with Steve Saville (2 for 13), Tom Saville (2 for 26) and Chris Thompson (1 for 6) chipping in, the visitors could only manage 93.

Haverhill, featuring six junior players as they continue to give youth a chance, took just 14 overs to wipe off the runs.

Sam Hartshorn followed his superb knock the previous day with another fine innings, scoring an unbeaten 64.
